Fall Football!

It's Time to Tailgate!

When football season ramps up, parking lots at stadiums across the country fill with excited fans sharing their favorite tailgating foods and traditions before a "big game."

It's hard to know for certain where tailgating parties originated, but they likely began when die-hard fans started arriving at football games early enough to socialize with other fans. Since socializing and eating go so well together, food and drinks inevitably became part of these gatherings, enjoyed on or around the only available flat surface—the tailgate! As more people joined in, it became a tradition, and the tailgate party was born!

Today these festivities have evolved, for some, into competitive, public spectacles. Serious tailgaters pride themselves on an elaborate setting, complete with team-based themes and all the comforts of home! Whether your tailgate parties are an elaborate or subdued affair, enjoy the season and cheering on your team!

Dear Friends,

September is a month that stirs up a lot of emotional memories for me. There is, of course, the sadness of summer coming to an end. However, there are also very happy things that happen in September.

Happy memories for me include cool nights and flowers in their fullest bloom. Hot days that have warm smells of hay harvest and putting up silage for the cows.

According to some of my grandkids, September goodness includes birthdays (and the associated presents), high school football, baseball playoffs, fishing, eating watermelon, the beginning of fall, starting high school, playing with my preschool buddies, and the beautiful transition of summer to fall.

Beautiful days lay ahead! I hope you enjoy them!

Take care,

Susan

MOOO RECIPES

Crockpot Buffalo Ranch Chicken Dip

This classic is easy to make and great for a tailgate party!

- 1 rotisserie chicken, shredded
- ¼ c. Country Cream butter, melted
- ¼ c. hot sauce
- ¼ c. ranch dressing
- 1 c. Tillamook cheddar cheese, shredded
- 1 8-oz. tub Philadelphia cream cheese, at room temperature
- 3 ribs celery, diced

Debone chicken, shred, and place meat in crockpot. Add butter, hot sauce, ranch dressing, cheddar cheese and cream cheese. Heat on high for 15 minutes or until bubbling hot, stirring occasionally, reduce heat to low. Top with diced celery and serve with tortilla chips or crusty French bread.
